The cute little askeriks are unexplained, which is another reason why economic development in Columbia County has been in the Ozone layer for years.

Of course the layout of the agenda speaks for itself.

 Amateur as usual in Columbia County Florida.

Columbia County's crack economic development team has had since the 19th of April to post this agenda to their economic development web site.

As of 08:40 am, May 2, two days before the meeting, the County's economic development team, Chaired by Commissioner Rusty DePratter, still has not gotten the agenda linked to the economic development web site.

Click the link and all one gets is "page not found."

Maybe they will get to it before the meeting.

While the County Charter requires that supporting material be posted the the county web site, of course it is anot there, as Columbia County has never found a law that they thought they should abide by.
